Academic Complaints:

Students may appeal their grade by following the process outlined in the course catalogue, as follows:

When a student disagrees with the decision of the faculty member concerning a grade/sanction assigned by a faculty member (e.g. project, homework, quiz, test, grading concerning academic dishonesty or misconduct, etc.), the following procedure applies:

1. First Step: Review by the department chair (Director of Academic Operations - for CPCE cases). The student may seek a review by the department chair (Director of Academic Operations-CPCE). The student submits the communication about the issue with the faculty member, any supporting evidence, and the decision of the faculty member to the department chair of the offering course (Director of Academic Operations-CPCE). The department chair (Director of Academic Operations-CPCE) will meet or speak with the student, the faculty member and any other persons he/she deems necessary. The department chair

(Director of Academic Operations-CPCE) will provide the student with a decision within five business days (excluding breaks and holidays) after completing the review.

2. Second Step: Review by Academic Review Committee (FINAL) If the student is not satisfied with the decision of the department chair (Director of Academic Operations-CPCE), the student may seek review, in writing, within five business days of receipt of the department chair's decision (excluding breaks and holidays) to the Academic Review Committee ("ARC"). The student must submit all of the prior communications, supporting materials and decision of the faculty member and department chair to the Executive Assistant to the Provost.

National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements (NC-SARA) oversees regional efforts to ensure that all SARA entities meet the expectations that have been established for reciprocity and will also establish common operating procedures. The National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements (NC-SARA), creates interstate reciprocity in the regulation of postsecondary distance education. The initiative brings together the four regional higher education compacts – the Midwestern Higher Education Compact, New England Board of Higher Education, Southern Regional Education Board, and Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education – to work to make distance education courses more accessible to students across state lines, as well as making it easier for states to regulate and institutions to participate in interstate distance education.

The New England Board of Higher Education approved the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for participation on June 7, 2018.
